5 MEN LINKED IN SLAYING OF OHIO EDITOR

(By Universal Service)
CANTON, Ohio, August 13.—Federal men working out of Cleveland were reported today to have uncovered information disclosing that one of the "trigger men" in the slaying of Don R. Mellett, editor of the Canton Daily News, is a city employee.

This man, whose name is being withheld at present, has been mentioned frequently in connection with the murder investigation. It was also learned that four other men took part in the conspiracy and that their names are known to federal operatives.

The federal grand jury which convenes Monday at Cleveland will not consider the Mellett case until Thursday, consuming the first three days for their regular duties, it was announced.

When the Grand Jury takes up the Mellett case, the five Canton men will be called to testify, it was said.

Judge Hubert O. Pontius was called to Cleveland late Friday to confer with District Attorney Bernstein. Pontius is the Canton Daily News attorney.

Pontius is planning steps, it was said, to prevent suspended Chief of Police S. A. Longel, from resuming his duties at the end of 80 days. He was suspended by Mayor Schwartz shortly after the Mellett killing.

As a part of the program, it is expected that Captain Ben Clarke, of the Bertillon Department, will be removed from the police department or if he is allowed to remain, he will be stripped of all authority.

"Pig Woman" Identifies Two In Hall Murder

Slain Woman's Daughter Also Testifies at Hearing Into Mysterious Murder Case

(By EARL L. SHAUB)
SOMERVILLE, N. J., Aug. 13.—"Willie" Stevens and Henry Carpenter went back to jail tonight after having been identified during their arraignment today as having been seen on the old Phillips farm the night the Rev. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills were killed there.

The hearing was adjourned until Monday morning when the prisoners will again be brought before Judge Frank L. Cleary to face more witnesses.

The testimony of these witnesses will determine whether they are to be released on bond pending action by the grand jury which will sit the charges that they killed the Rev. Hall and his favorite choir singer four years ago.

They were identified today as the men who were at the scene of the murder by Mrs. Jane Gibson, the "pig woman" and star witness of this afternoon's hearing.

Stevens is the weak minded brother of Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, widow of the slain rector, who is also charged with the murder, Carpenter, a Wall Street broker, is her cousin. Mrs. Gibson had previously identified Mrs. Hall as the woman she saw bending over the bodies of the murder victims.

She said that thieves had stolen her corn and she was determined to catch them. In giving the first courtroom story of the four year old mystery, she added:

Department Of State Refuses To Act In Mex.

Holds Mexican Church War Is a Private Matter and Is Not At Present Our Concern

(By WILLIAM P. FLYTHE)
WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—The State Department today refused to act on the request of the Knights of Columbus that diplomatic relations with Mexico be severed as a result of the church war.

Secretary of State Kellogg, it was learned, replied that the government must still consider the Mexican affair and for the present at least must continue a policy of hands off.

It was also learned that any action taken by the United States will be based upon Mexico's violation of laws, which are the subject of many American protests and are again reaching a critical stage.

It is this matter and not the church issue which is bringing Ambassador Sheffield back to the United States to urge a stronger Mexican policy.

The knights of Columbus protest was presented this morning by Supreme Knight James A. Flaherty, of Philadelphia. He was accompanied by Treasurer Dan J. Callahan, of Washington. The protest was based on a resolution adopted at the Philadelphia convention August 8. With it the two officers presented evidence intended to substantiate the charge that Mexico had "insulted, harassed and expelled American citizens under circumstances abhorrent to our conception of constitutional government."

The resolution advocated immediate severance of diplomatic relations with the Calles government, lifting of the embargo on arms and to "eradicate Sovietism next door to America."

President Favors Charting Of Cross-Country Air Routes For Private Owners

(By Universal Service)
PAUL SMITHS, N. Y., Aug. 13.—America stands tonight on the threshold of the greatest air development in the history of the world.

Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover laid a sweeping expansion program before the president for approval.

In a conference lasting less than an hour between the president and Hoover in White Pine Camp, these developments were produced to make the nation supreme in the air.

President Coolidge approved Hoover's plans for establishment of the "Trans-continental Airway," which will be carrying passengers, freight and mail in regular trips between New York and the Pacific Coast within six months.

He approved the route and plans for promotion of the "Southwestern Airway" which will operate between Chicago, Fort Worth and Dallas.

He gave Hoover complete power to go ahead with a program for locating five additional air routes over which a myriad of planes ultimately will be flying, carrying the nations products in peace time and serving in the front line of defense in the event of war.

Secretary Hoover announced that Postmaster-General New, possibly within six months, will lease Uncle Sam's great air mail to private contractors for operation, and that the present air mail service will be the basis of the trans-continental service which private operators will inaugurate and maintain under private control of the government.

"We are on the verge of a tremendous development in the air," said Hoover, "the country needs it and demands it. Great fleets will be transporting passengers and express."

Officers elected at the meeting last night are: George B. Fredenburg, president; E. M. Downer, treasurer; E. A. Martin, secretary and vice-presidents: Mayor Mrs. Mattie Chandler, H. M. Flint, T. M. Carlson, Fred H. LaMoine, Fred Caudle, L. W. Diehl, L. J. Thomas, W. T. Helms, Wallace Snellgrove, Frank Tittmore, Charles Renwick, E. L. Schofield, E. D. Gray, G. C. Vaughn, E. J. Garrard, W. Coroner Donnelly Holds Inquest Coroner Charles F. Donnelly held an inquest last night in Brentwood into the death of Penroule De Costa who died suddenly at the Mexican camp August 9. The jury found that death was due to acute dilatation of the heart and tuberculosis.

Testimony produced at the inquest showed that the De Costa girl had received treatment from a Mexican woman at the camp. The jury recommended that the district attorney cause an investigation to be made of the sanitary conditions of the camp and investigate the rights of the woman to practice medicine.

Henry Englekirk and Willard Poage have returned to their homes from their vacation spent at Mono Lake. The two report a wonderful trip.

ANTI-SOCIAL PIE

It was intense and undeserved flattery that the wires carried of an ill-equipped piece of human dregs at Seattle the other day, who had his confessed murders of 14 persons to a habit of revenge he has acquired when jailed for a petty theft of a pie. But for the juxtaposition of the comedy articles—pie—and a sensation such as an admission of 14 killings, this moron would not have rated quite the mention he got. Nor is his philosophy deserving of consideration.

Society, which this human bug sought to injure out of revenge for its having imprisoned him for a bit of an offense, has always had to organize itself against his kind. In fact it was the presence of lawless persons who made it necessary in the first place to civilize the human race. As men became busier they had less time to devote to clubbing down their enemies, and so they divided humanity into the law-abiding and the law-breaking, and hired governments to attend to the latter.

It was a pitiful revenge, even to get away with 14 human lives. Organized industry, organized transportation and organized warfare on pests take a bigger toll than that any day in the year.

The 14 dead will be missed only by their immediate relatives and friends, and society as a whole will hardly notice the loss as it is displayed against the 15,000 who die each year in fires, the 50,000 killed in automobile accidents, the occasional hundreds and thousands who perish due to floods, famine and pestilences.

It is a mistake to array oneself against society with a weapon other than logic. The world gives way only to argument, but it is very mulish in the face of compulsion.

A New York Man claims to be the champion coffee drinker of America with an average of twenty-four cups a day. It Secretary Hoover could get him to swear off it might break the Brazil coffee trust.

ATTACK ON THE MILL—"The Officer's Bargain"

LEO ORNSTEIN

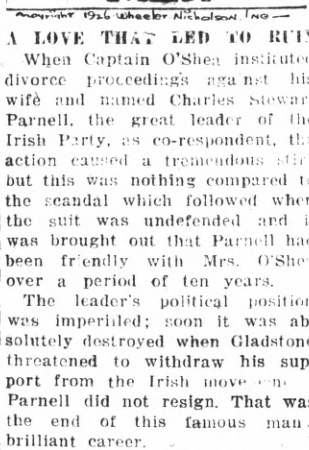

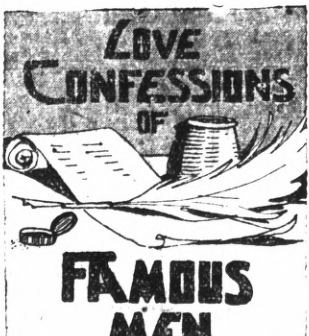

Less than a dozen years ago the musical world was startled by a young pianist who played music that seemed utterly mad, but yet with a fascination so compelling that he drew vast audiences wherever he appeared and provoked volumes of journalistic discussion.

This young pianist-composer was Leo Ornstein. You will remember the furor he caused by such pieces as "The Wild Man Dance," "The Funeral March" and "A La Cinoise." It was music such as had not been heard before, sometimes requiring a pounding of the keyboard with the fist; many great musicians were convinced no living man could transcribe the notes intelligently on paper. But Ornstein proved that, according to his own method, his music was logical enough and had it published. Eventually he became accepted as one of the leaders of the Impressionist school of music, and one of the greatest living pianists besides.

Today Ornstein seldom plays in public although he is still in his early thirties. He has retired from the concert platform, and, sequestered in his own home, he is devoting all his time to composition. And it is noteworthy that his present works show an emphatic recession from the barbaric idiom with which he was formerly identified.

New Greek: Didn't have to find it. I just stooped over and there it was!

MRS. O'SHEA

When Captain O'Shea instigated divorce proceedings against his wife and named Charles Stewart Parnell, the great leader of the Irish Party, as co-respondent, the action caused a tremendous stir, but this was nothing compared to the scandal which followed when the suit was undefended and it was brought out that Parnell had been friendly with Mrs. O'Shea over a period of ten years.

The leader's political position was imperiled; soon it was absolutely destroyed when Gladstone threatened to withdraw his support from the Irish movement. Parnell did not resign. That was the end of this famous man's brilliant career.

After Capt. O'Shea obtained his divorce Parnell married Mrs. O'Shea but the ordeal he had gone through proved too much for him, and he died two years later.

Mrs. Parnell later revealed all the circumstances of their romance and directed this bitter and illuminating condemnation against his foe.

"Because Parnell contravened certain social laws, not regarding them as binding in any way, and because I joined him in this contravention since his love made all else of no account to me, we did not shrink at the clamor of the upholders of these outraged laws, you recent the pressing of the consequences that were inevitable and always foreseen.

"The freedom of choice we had ourselves claimed, we were wise enough to smile it, in some instances, the greatness of our offense was loudly proclaimed by those who we knew lived in a freedom of love more varied than our own. For the hypocrisy of these statesmen and politicians who, knowing for ten years that Parnell was my lover, had with the readiest tact and utmost courtesy accepted the fact as making a sure and safe channel of communication with him; whom they knew as a force to be placated; those who, when the time came to give Ireland the benefits they had promised him for her, repudiated him from under the cloak of the religion they thereby forswore; he, and I with him, felt a contempt unspeakable."

One of Parnell's letters to Mrs.

THE MOTHER OF E. H. SOTHERN

If all records could be examined it might be found that a majority of our actors and actresses came from clerical families. It was so in the case of that great artist, E. H. Sothern.

Sothern's father was also a famous actor but his mother was Fannie Stewart, the daughter of the Rev. R. I. Stewart, an incumbent of a parish in the County Wexford, Ireland. She was also the grand-daughter of the Bishop of Derry.

Mrs. Sothern followed her husband on the stage and was cast for small parts and it was while she was playing in New Orleans that E. H. Sothern was born. His birth was recorded by his father, perhaps appropriately enough, in an expense book.

In his young days Sothern was a poor prospect for an actor. His mother's influence was first predominant. He was sent to England for study and he spent many years at English schools. Then he was placed at the art school of the London Royal Academy with the aim of making a painter out of him.

But though he inherited delicate traits from his mother he was also a son of his father and the theater ran strong in his blood. He wanted to be an actor and no other profession could satisfy him.

His father was unable to recognize any thespian qualities in him. He even wrote of him: "Poor Eddie is a nice, lovable boy, but he will never make an actor."

The boy, however, pressed his father for a chance and at the age of twenty his father gave him some lines to say in a small part. As soon as the curtain went up the young would-be actor proceeded to forget his lines and thus convinced his father, temporarily at least, that he was a failure on the stage.

But Sothern became a great actor, one of the most intellectual artists on our stage, and it can be fairly said that it is to the maternal side of his influences that he owes his distinctive qualities, which are so different from any other actor's.

A room, its floor paved in tired confusion with ties, collars, and gartered socks; a dresser looking like a rumpled head of hair; a few glasses, snobbishly inattentive to an empty bottle; orange peels that wither in embarrassment; shirts once strong and starched, danced to a limp lack of turgidity; hanging on the back of a chair, a dinner jacket with knobby bumps where shoulders were; trousers resting placidly, half off one end of the bed; likewise, at the other end, somebody.

It is quite impossible for me to tell you just how much you have changed my life, what a small interest I take in what is going about me and how I detest everything which has happened during the last few days to keep me away from you. 4,917 ENROLLED IN SCHOOLS OF RICHMOND

According to the enrollment figures turned in yesterday to Miss Nora Ashfield, assistant superintendent of city schools, 4,917 students have enrolled in the Richmond schools during the week. It must be remembered that this is only about ninety-five per cent of the enrollment for during the coming weeks students now on their vacation in different parts of the country will return to enroll.

Enrollment at the beginning of the term is always light, Miss Ashfield declares and it is expected that a large enrollment will take place before the end of next week.

Although no data as to the comparison of the enrollment of this year and that of last year is given, it is understood that this year compares favorably with that of the past year.

The enrollments of the schools, as announced by Miss Ashfield are as follows:

Kindergarten, 291; Lincoln, 479; Fairmont, 439; Kensington, 40; Harding, 104; Stege, 224; Grant, 625; Pullman, 128; Peres, 361; Washington, 219; Nystrom, 178; Roosevelt junior high, 1124; Richmond union high, 692.

Considerable progress has been made upon the new school buildings and the additions to the old buildings, according to a statement from the office of Superintendent W. T. Helms. The Kensington pupils are quartered in the temporary school house used last ten minutes, at its conclusion Secretary Kellogg emerged with Flaherty and Callahan to announce that a mutual agreement had been made to treat the matter with the utmost secrecy.

Department of State Refuses To Act in Mex.

The only statement forthcoming was that the meeting was for the sole purpose of urging action on the Philadelphia resolution. It was learned immediately after, however, that Secretary Kellogg is inclined to continue his policy of "watchful waiting."

It was said that the Department thus far has received none of the reports of outrages against American citizens upon which the Knights of Columbus protest was based. Experts of the Mexican situation were frequently called in to be interrogated, but without information, it was learned.

Secretary Kellogg announced that he was leaving tonight for the Adirondacks to lay the matter before President Coolidge at the Summer White House. We will go by train to New York City and motor to Paul Smiths. He expects to see the President Monday.

It was at the request of President Coolidge that the resolution of the Knights of Columbus was presented to Secretary Kellogg. The officers wished to give it to the President. He explained, however, that all of the papers on the Mexican situation are in Washington, and that the report would be transmitted to him by Secretary Kellogg.

There was every indication to-night that the United States will continue to exercise the greatest caution in dealing with the situation, it was pointed out that so long as American lives and property are not endangered the feud between the church and the state are problems for Mexico to solve from within.

There are, however, several officials protests already lodged with the Mexican Government on the subject of her anti-alien laws. The latest was delivered last week.

So far Mexico has refused to indicate her willingness to change what the United States has called retroactive and confiscatory laws. In fact there has been keen resentment over the fact that the United States should ask modification, it was stated.

Ambassador James R. Sheffield left Mexico today to report in person to President Coolidge and Secretary Kellogg on this phase of Mexican relations. He will recommend a more vigorous policy for the protection of American properties.

MEXICO KILLS DOGS IN WAR ON DISEASES

(By Universal Service)

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 13.—A quarter of a million dead dogs.

That's the record established by the Health Department of the Mexican Federal District, including Mexico City and suburbs, for the past eighteen months. Officials of the department justify the canine killing campaign by the fact that since it started, January 1, 1925, the number of persons bit by mad dogs has dropped from an average of from twenty to thirty daily to but three.

"Before the campaign started Mexico City had undoubtedly one of the largest floating populations of mad dogs of any city in the world. While there are no statistics to prove it, stray dogs probably outnumbered human beings."

With such a vast number of untrained canines roaming around through all sections of the city, the health problem became serious. "Partly because so many persons bitten by mad dogs know nothing of the proper treatment and put no attention to their wound until too late. There was but one way to cope with the problem and the Health Department took it, in the face of bitter opposition."

Mexicans are naturally kind-hearted and fond of animals. Dog catchers went out with trucks equipped with high steel cages during the early stages of the campaign. They were forced to liberate the captured canines and sometimes met with harsh treatment themselves. An agent of the Health Department who tried to catch a dog in Tacubaya was set upon by a mob, beaten severely and might have been killed except for interference by the police who rescued him with some difficulty.

The dog catchers of "perros" now travel in groups of not fewer than two, armed with pistols. Only one dog is selected for capture. The dog catchers are selected for the dog catching squad, men who are able and willing to overcome any interference with their mission. They have earned the respect of street crowds and seldom meet with stronger opposition than verbal abuse and taunts.

An educational campaign carried on for some time by the Health Department has been effective. The reading public is taught that while a well-cared for dog which is well fed and kept clean, may be man's best friend, street dogs are nearly always hungry, dirty, flea ridden, disease laden, and a menace to health. Ninety percent are said to be afflicted with diseases transmittable to human beings, such as tuberculosis, cancer, typhoid fever, syphilis and hydrophobia.

Street dogs are often taken home by Mexican children, who feed them and try to cure their infirmities and even sleep with them. If a dog has communicable diseases its boy or girl playmate are pretty likely to contract the same disease. Impromptu lectures along these lines are given by Health Department agents in the midst of their dog catching duties and frequently with good effect. The press also helps.

Captured dogs are killed humanely with gas.

Lady Astor Loses Fight to Delay Tax On Betting As Laid Down in Budget

By ROBERT J. FROW

(By Universal Service)

LONDON, Aug. 13.—Lady Astor has failed in a spirited attempt to delay by six months the application of the betting tax of 5 percent on all stakes, as laid down in Winston Churchill's Budget this year. The tax becomes operative from November 1 next.

Denouncing the principle of the tax in the House of Commons, Lady Astor said: "I don't mind being thought hypocritical. I look at the matter solely from the point of view of the women and children who suffer through betting. I am frightened by the thought that the tax is going to stop racing. There are many more lamentable things in life than the stopping of racing."

"Personally I don't own any money, though my husband does; but he would face the moral question of the tax. I am convinced that if he really were convinced of the morality of the tax, he would put it off for one year, and then, if he wants to bring it forward, let him do so as a constructive proposal to deal with betting as a social evil and not as a system of getting revenue out of weakness and what so far has been treated as a vice."

Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, successfully replying to attacks on the tax, said:

"Experience is showing day by day that in regard to matters like drink and betting, indulgence in which does not excite the reproaches of great masses of free human beings, prohibition in advanced by every evil, by evasion, by corruption, by a great increase in either drinking or betting, and by large sums which would otherwise be used to the advantage of the state being gathered by the bootlegger or the illegal gambler."

"In issuing licenses to book-makers the government takes no more responsibility for their character than it does for the character of patent medicines. The government stamp, and for which it receives no liability in the event of their failure to cure, does not the law which deals with the fraudulent patentmaker as with a fraudulent bookmaker who with a fraudulent patent medicine manufacturer who still remain

In full validity and action.

"Of all the illogical attitudes which have been adopted on the moral issue, I really think the palm and prize must be awarded to Lady Astor. One moment she reads our hearts with the moral obliquity of betting and the evil it causes in the country and in all classes, and at the same time we are exciting ourselves to know what will be the fortunes of the great stable with which she is associated (Lord Astor's stable)."

Lady Astor Angry
"If my memory serves me, she recently adopted a course which on the whole is a risky one for members of Parliament to adopt. She gave advice on a public platform to a large number of persons as to the horse upon which they had better, if they should be tempted, repose their faith and their stake."

"I never did," cried Lady Astor, in answer to this allusion to the report that she had advised some Welsh miners to back Sir Abe Bailey's horse Lex for the recent Derby stakes.

"I quite agree," Churchill continued, "that the noble lady has a method of escaping from the criticism of illogicality by saying she only gave the advice in order to sicken the men of their bad habits. The horse she advised them to back did not run first; it ran last."

"It has been stated that betting has increased in every country where it has been taxed; but even if that be so, it does not follow that a betting tax in Britain would increase betting. In countries which have just begun racing, where betting is only developing in new countries where the population is increasing, it may well be that, in spite of the tax, betting will steadily increase, but in Great Britain there is more betting than in any other country in the world."

"It is quite certain that the tax will diminish the total volume of money passed in betting, and I am budgeting on a diminution of $250,000,000. The only doubt I have is whether the rate of the tax is not cutting too deep, whether it may not affect horse racing itself prejudicially. Why should the wealthy classes who gamble without taking the trouble to see the horses running not pay some contribution for their

U. S. TO FIGHT FOR TRAFFIC ON OCEANS

By H. H. STANSBURY

(By Universal Service)

LONDON, Aug. 13.—Joseph Sheedy and Commissioner Walsh took charge of the London office of the United States Shipping Board today and announced a vigorous new policy that will be extended to all doors of Europe.

A battle for a fair share of ocean traffic both freight and passenger, will be started immediately. "We have got the ships and are determined to get our share of the business," said Sheedy. "This applies not only to England but to all of Europe."

"Commissioner Walsh is now here at the direction of the shipping Board to make a thorough investigation of all facilities of the chief ports in preparation for the fulfillment of these plans. Tomorrow we begin the investigation of British ports. We will then go to Hamburg, to the near East and Russia, returning by the way of France."

"When the investigation is concluded we will return direct to Washington where I will be the personal representative of Gen. Walton."

The Shipping Board plans are a definite challenge to the combine recently formed by British shipping interests to regain the ocean trade lost during the war and since, both Britain and the United States are forced to fight for business by the rapid rejuvenation of the German lines and Mussolini's ambitious program.

It is expected that the next twelve months will see the greatest battle of the last two decades for sea trade.

pleasure and excitement for the upkeep of the state when taxation is heavy on the humblest comforts of the poor and on business man and manufacturers."

The Chancellor expects the 5 percent tax to yield a revenue of $30,000,000 to $35,000,000 annually. He promises to cut the rate if the yield is appreciably greater and the tax is found to have a withering effect on horse breeding and racing.

C. MURRAY IN BIG COMEDY AT THE RICHMOND

Alfred A. Santell, the brilliant young director who has given the screen "Classified" and "Bluebeard's Seven Wives," has made another winner. It is "Sweet Daddies," which enjoyed an enthusiastic premiere at the Richmond Theatre last night. The new production is one glorious laugh from beginning to end, with thrills and love interest and a few other things thrown in for good measure.

"Sweet Daddies" is without question the "Sweet Daddy" of all the comedy dramas we've seen this season. For the opening scene, when a freshly baked berry pie spreads itself over the immaculate white shirt front of Gaston Glass, the sale of merit which sweeps the audience does not recede until the final fade-out.

When Charlie Murray enters the scene he is an advance courier heralding riotous screen entertainment. George Sydney, who is Charlie's partner in fun, does another of his inimitable Hebrew characterizations in "Sweet Daddies," and both of them have an invaluable aid in Vera Gordon. "Sweet Daddies" is a tale of love and molasses—a queer partnership between a wealthy son of Abraham and a shrewd son of Erin—and boasts one of the most humorous surprise endings we have ever witnessed.

Johnny Ralston, as the ingenue, is both talented and beautiful, and debonair Jack Mulhall, who will soon rate stardom in his own name, gives a superlative performance. Gaston Glass, portage of the late Sarah Bernhardt, and Aggie Herrington, the capable character actress, add to the enjoyment of "Sweet Daddies."

The airplane accident occurs when Jimmy seeks to forwarn his father and his partner that prohibition agents are after them. The plane is shot down by Federal Mr. and Mrs. Paul Sanborne, who have been spending their vacation in this country left yesterday for their home in the Hawaiian Islands. The couple were entertained at the home of Sanborne's parents, Rev and Mrs. H. K. Sanborne, 1007, South Fifth street. They left for the islands on the S. S. Mona.

ZANE GREY FILM IS FEATURED AT THE CALIFORNIA

From prologue to final fadeout, "Born to the West," the Paramount production, which opened at the California Theatre yesterday for an engagement of two days, proved, if one may judge from comment made by satisfied patrons, one of the most entertaining westerns that has come to the screen in many a day.

No author seems to reflect the real west and the vast open spaces as does Zane Grey. Paramount has adhered to the story and provided a cast composed of players, who seem to step right from out the book.

The story opens in Colorado, in the year 1875, with two school boys engaged in a terrific fight, each emerging from the fray with scars he is to carry through life. Likewise, each comes with an inborn desire to main and kill, a feud which continues through the years that follow.

There are tremendous thrills contained in the picture, daring escapes, he-man fist fights and gun-play galore.

Through it all there also runs a strong vein of romance. Jack Holt is an inspiring figure as "Colorado," a cowpuncher whose horse's hoofs had covered every trail of the West, from the heat of the Panhandle to the snows of Montana; a cowboy who has lived the rough life of saddle and gun. His boy and manhood enemy is played by Bruce Gordon. The girl is Margaret Morris. Comedy highlights are furnished by Raymond Hatton and Tom Kennedy, remembered for their work in "Behind the Front."

Other features on the same program include "Dancing Daddy," a Jack Duffy comedy; "Ko Ko Packs Up," a cartoon comedy; "International News," and Larry Canelo at the organ.

Social Service Bureau Report

Considerable increase in the activities of the Richmond Social Service bureau during the month of July is noted in the report of the bureau released by Mrs. R. G. Lee yesterday.

The report is as follows: Families relieved, 35; clothing distributed, 508 pieces; shoes distributed, 35 pairs; comforters donated, 3; employment secured for 7; baby cribs donated, 1; general nursing calls, 80; investigations, 6; vegetables distributed, 5 large crates; complete layette donated. Milk distributed among the families cost $29.76; $7.46 was spent for fuel, and $2.20 for miscellaneous expenses.

Sermons on Vacation To Start Tomorrow

Out of his vacation-time experiences in the mountains and at the sea-shore, Rev. C. G. Lindemann of Wesley Methodist church will begin a series of Sunday night sermons. The subject Sunday evening at 7:45 will be "Nature's Symphony." Mrs. Violet Williams will sing a soprano solo, this, with other special musical numbers, will be added features at this service. The vacation-time audiences at Wesley church have been fine, and with the close of the vacation period a considerable growth will be noted.

At the morning service Rev. Lindemann's theme will be "Not By Bread Alone." Miss Geraldine Ripley will sing as a solo "Into the Woods My Master Went."

Equilization Board Reduces Stege Tax

A reduction of two cents on the tax rate of the Stege Sanitary District was made by the Board of Equalization when the assessment rolls were received from Assessor Ernest Bronsel. The present rate of 23 cents per $100 of assessed valuation is based on the $5,442,605 valuation of the district. The rate is made up of 3 cents for bond and 15 cents for the running expense fund.

According to the report received from County Treasurer C. L. Dodge there remains outstanding in bonds, $29,000 of the original issue under the rate fixed by the board, 4,354.89 will be raised this year for that fund while the running expenses will be $8,163.90.

THE CUB LOOKS OVER MATERIAL FOR FOOTBALL

BY THE CUB
With August waning and September peeping its head around the corner, what comes to the mind of the average sports fan but football? The time is now coming swiftly and surely when the school boys as well as the college men will think, talk and dream football. Yesterday afternoon as the sun was giving its last look at this section of the earth for a few hours, thirty-five high school boys walked from the dusty, dirty, high school football field to the showers after a hard day's practice.

With every year, the fans in this town bemoan the fact that the high school will not have a football season worth talking about and the high school boys make the "cub" and the library their daily meeting place to discuss the chances of the football season and most of all the chances of winning the big game with Mt. Tamalpais Military academy at the close of the season.

Every day has the 130 and unlimited team plays around in the dust. You will see a large group of students gathered around an undertaker holding a post mortem and muttering and sobbing. The good old days, they will tell you, when men were men and football teams were real football teams has come forever.

Then comes the old grad, with a scowl on his face and upon sight of the prospects for the team he breaks down and sobs. "Now When I was a kid they all do it, they did it as long as I can remember and will do it after I'm in the grave pushing up the carrots."

But in spite of the mourning and the sobs, the local high school always has, and always will turn out a football team that is worth writing home to Mother about.

Even though the grade murmured last year of the small chances the football team will have this season, it would be worth their while to go and take a look over the bunch that Coach Ivan Hill has out on the field, pegging away. It is work, hard work, and they do it with a grin.

Hill has plenty of material to work with and he has plenty of support. Walter Siegel, member of last year's eleven and Ralph Lee, member of the famous 1921 Wrecking Crew are on hand and are putting the recruits through a stiff training.

The high school is out for another record and by the looks of the material they have it will be no miracle if they build up one of the teams you read about.

DOING THE SPORTING THING

By JOE ARCHIBALD

IN THE EARLY NINETIES, THE FLOWING 'LOCKS' ERA THIS GARB WAS THE LAST WORD IN TENNIS WEAR

Dame Fashion, that fickle lady, who changes styles as often as Mother Nature changes the seasons shows in her diary of the past decade an almost ludicrous contrast in sport wear of two generations. On the tennis courts, during the flowing locks era, the ladies cavorted in the style shown above; a long superfluous skirt that is scarcely adaptable to a sport where unusual agility and speed are required. What chance would she have had in such a costume against the modern girl with her short sleeveless dress, allowing complete freedom of muscular action?

If such a match could be arranged between May Sutton Bundy, who won a National title in the old costume and Suzanne Lenglen, the French marvel of today, the victory could scarcely be conceded to the player hampered by the long flowing garments. Regardless of opinion, it is an interesting study.

POTASH FIELDS OF TEXAS ARE TO BE DEVELOPED
(By Universal Service)
WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Aug. 12.—With intensive measures under way to develop potash deposits in Texas and nearby areas, the United States soon will be freed of foreign monopoly control of this vital fertilizer material, it was predicted today by C. C. Concanon, chief of the commerce department chemical division.

Altho the biggest customer in world trade for potash, this country is still dependent for its supply upon the Franco-German combine exploiting the Alsacean deposits, Concanon told the Institute of Politics.

"The fertilizer industry is peculiarly beset by the incubus of foreign monopoly control of essential raw materials—nitrate as well as potash being affected," Concanon said.

"This situation has its repercussions in the agricultural progress of our country and is reflected in the welfare of all of us as individuals and as a nation."

SECOND DEFEAT SUFFERED BY HELEN WILLS

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Miss Helen Wills, national woman tennis champion, suffered the second defeat within a week here this afternoon. The youthful Internationalist was defeated 6-0, 6-1, 6-2.

In the semi-final of the women's New York State tournament by Mrs. Mollie Mallory, the player whom she defeated as national champion in 1923.

Miss Elizabeth Ryap, of Santa Monica, California, had defeated Miss Wills in the Seabright final last Friday, 6-4, 6-2.

By her victory today Mrs. Mallory gained the honor of being the second American player to defeat the National champion since 1922, when the former successfully defended her title against the present holder.

A desperate rally gave the California the first set which was fought into extra games seemed to sap her strength, and she was at the mercy of the powerful stroking Norse woman in the final two sets.

Mrs. Mallory, however, continued to play the brilliant form which has characterized her play all season.

In the men's southern New York tournament, Vincent Richards turned in another masterful court performance to defeat Francis T. Hunter in straight sets, 6-1, 6-3, to gain the semi-final.

"Balloon Trunks" For Men Shown In N. Y. Shops

By EDWARD M. RUTTENBER
NEW YORK, August 13.—For lack of a better term men might be called "ambisexuals" in their attire today. In outdoor apparel they seek an air of extreme nonchalance. Beneath the surface they vie with women in a sense of the fastidious. We find the well-dressed man wearing soft collars on his shirt, the same this season being extremely long. The trousers of the period are loose and comfortable. Shoes are broad. Even straw hats lend themselves to softer weaves with brims that may be turned down to give a rakish tilt to the chapeau and at the same time emphasizes an air of easy indifference.

Efforts to make men's attire semi-formal have not been especially successful. Such efforts have not aroused the support of men generally. Even the stylists concede that "fallen men" cannot be restored to starch and rigid effects, summer or winter.

The men are like the flappers; they are limp and lazy-looking. They lop rather than lounge. They droop when they are at ease. Hence the nonchalant note in outer apparel; an effect almost as difficult to achieve gracefully as the other extreme. Some men can wear insouciant clothes and others have them thrust upon them, but at any event the majority of well-scrubbed citizens are aiming at just such an effect.

But the dandies of the moment are masqueraders without a conscience. Robbed of their mannish stand revealed as "ambisexuals" bipeds. They are now even accused of carrying out the ensemble idea in underwear hosiery.

This season several of the Fifth Avenue stores are carrying from 35 to 40 shades in men's trunks. The union suit has been almost entirely shelved by the men who follow the fads. The materials that are employed in making these trunks, which are worn with silk knitted shirts, are light weight silks and fine cotton materials.

When the shirt is made of cotton the trunks are usually of that material also. The range of colors has been achieved by giving new names to some old favorites.

"Cherub," and "Pastache" are few names for colors now used in getting out underwear for men.

A strange feature of the silk trunks being widely sold about New York is that they are very broad and are known as "balloon trunks." These garments are turned out in plus-four modish proportions. It was difficult to purchase silk underwear for the reason that the restless men soon ripped the lingerie. When the women discovered that the geographical characteristic of men's trunks had been changed they regarded as a departure as an invitation to purchase. A man selling men's underwear in a smart department store today is compelled to be a diplomat all the time and an excellent psychologist every minute.

The new models fit snug at the waist, with a row of adjustable buttons in the back. They billow over the body and are snug again at the lower extremities. Hosiery has been turned out to match these trunks and the ensemble idea is becoming rather general. Popular colors up to date are orange, light blue (cherub) pink. The hosiery harmonizes but does not match.

One now understands why they used sanded glass in gymnasium and locker room windows.

Dumb—My word! What heavenly food!
"Bell—Yeah, I can almost taste the feathers on this angel cake."
—Stanford Chaparral.

S. F. TERMINUS OF NATION'S AIR TRAFFIC ROUTE

and all our plans for upbuilding of a great civil fleet are based upon the thought that it will be at the service of our country in time of war."

Hoover, now chief of commercial aviation as the result of the civil aviation bill passed by congress, said the government will chart these routes, build emergency landing fields, erect lighted beacons for night flying and examine planes and aviators for safety.

Private operators capable of providing sustained service will be given the right to fly over these routes which the government will designate. Henry Ford, T. E. Mitten, the Philadelphia traction magnate, who is now operating a regular air route between Philadelphia and Washington, and local groups which are operating between Boston and New York, Los Angeles and Salt Lake City and Pueblo and Cheyenne have already been interested by the government in operating the proposed trans-continental airway, Hoover said.

Private operators will provide the planes, personnel, hangars and other equipment, Hoover said. The government will chart the routes and provide them with assistance when needed.

The trans-continental route approved by the president from New York to the west coast and to be known as the "Trans-continental Airway," is as follows:

New York to Cleveland, Chicago, Iowa City, Des Moines, Omaha, North Platte, Cheyenne and Salt Lake City. From there, one line will move to San Francisco, another to Los Angeles. As soon as possible a northern route will be established from Salt Lake City to Portland, Seattle, and Tacoma.

The "Southwestern Airway" also approved by the president is as follows:

Chicago to Dallas and Fort Worth by way of Moline, St. Joseph, Kansas City, Wichita, Oklahoma City and Tulsa.

Other routes to be developed in the future were announced by Hoover, as follows:

Atlantic airway from some point north of Boston, through Boston, New York, Philadelphia or Baltimore, Washington, Raleigh, Savannah or Atlanta, Jacksonville, to Miami. Regular service is now being maintained by private operators between Boston and New York, Philadelphia and Washington and Atlanta and Miami.

Pacific airway, from Southern California to northern Washington.

Great Lakes airway, a branch of the trans-continental, to operate between Cleveland, Detroit and Chicago. Ford is already operating there.

North-western airway-Chicago to Minneapolis and St. Paul Mississippi valley Airway-Chicago to St. Louis to New Orleans.

"We will merge the existing routes into the new routes wherever possible," said Hoover. "Postmaster-General New informs me that the mail lines will be leased to private contractors as soon as he receives guaranteed continuity of performance. It is an interesting fact that the night mail service between New York and Chicago is now paying the cost of operation."

BOXING

The junior lightweight title will be at stake when Tod Morgan steps into the ring at Recreation Park in San Francisco on either September 7 or 9 to face Johnnie Dundee, former featherweight champion. The battle will be staged under auspices of the Monarch Athletic club of San Francisco.

TENNIS

Today's tennis matches at Forest Hills, New York will be an east vs. west affair for the main match of the day will be Big Bill Tilden battling with Little Bill Johnston. This is the first time the two have met this season. Three out of five sets will settle the game.

BASEBALL

A move backed by three veterans of the Pittsburgh National League ball club seeks to have Fred Clarke, vice-president of the club and former manager, removed from the players' bench. It is denied that any friction exists between Clarke and the players.

RACING

Racing circles are in an uproar as the result of the failure to pay Colonel E. R. Bradley for his Boot to Boot victory in the recent $100,000 derby at Washington Park. Bradley was issued a check for $89,050 but it was not made good.

PIRATES

The Pittsburgh Pirates are preparing for the National League pennant to remain in their grasp. To keep the pennant still safely in their grasp they have purchased two new outfielders. One was purchased from the Rochester club of the International League and the other from the Wichita club of the Western League.

Ironworkers to Play Post Season Games

Although the Ironworkers lost all hopes of taking the Three C League pennant they still want the world to know that they are out to play baseball. On Sunday they will cross bats with the West Brothers Roofing company of Oakland.

Mathews will be of the mound for the local team and Moss is ready to don the iron mask.

Osmand Wins Flash Stakes

J. E. Widne's Osmand, with Earl Sance up, and quoted at 7-1 in the betting, won the fifty-second running of the historic Flash Stakes at the opening of Saratoga race track. Osmand defeated the heavily played favorite, Candy Queen with Sen Forward, third. Photo shows the finish.

Ted Brewes Wins From Mitchell

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 13.—Ted Brewes, of St. Louis, successfully defended his national public parks title by defeating Dooley Mitchell, of Washington, D. C., in a four set final.

Today's victory gave Brewes the title for the "third successive year," Mitchell's powerful forehand drive kept Brewes away from the net in the first set, which the Washington player won 6-4.

The St. Louisian, starting slowly as usual, found his stride in the second set and ran out the match, 6-2, 6-1, 6-4.

Elks to Plan Golf Tourney

The golfers of the Richmond Elks club will meet some time next week and will start arrangements for the golf tournament to be held some time in September at the Carquinez club. played on any course that they year's tournament is in charge of Frank Gordon who won last the event.

According to the tentative rules, the qualifying rounds can be selected on the first Sunday in September. Thereafter the rounds will be played on the successive Sundays.

Last year the handicaps were selected by the scores turned in by each player of five games, thus, striking an average, but this year the handicap will be selected from the qualifying round scores.

"Pig Woman" Identifies Two In Hall Murder

"I heard a wagon coming from Millstone. I thought it might be the corn thieves so I got on my mule and followed the wagon.

"I followed it for half a mile to De Russey's lane. Then my mule brayed and, fearing the men in the wagon would know I was following, dropped back a ways.

"About this time an automobile came from New Brunswick. I drew to one side. The auto turned in to the lane, stopped and then backed out. In the glare of the headlights I saw a man and a woman to my right.

"How far were they from the car? Did they look as though they had just got out of the car?" asked Simpson.

"No, I don't think so. They were thirty or forty feet away. Waiting for the car to go out. I didn't see them after the car left. I went on down the road and saw a small sedan standing by the side of the road. I turned back again, tied my mule and walked about forty feet when I heard a quarrel."

"You mean you heard voices," asked Simpson.

"I heard voices," repeated Mrs. Gibson.

"A man or a woman?" asked Simpson.

"I don't know. It sounded like grumbling."

"What is loud?"

"Sometimes it was loud."

"Did you hear what was said?"

"I heard somebody say something about letters—the voice was very much excited."

"Did you hear somebody say: 'Explain those letters?'"

"Something like that."

"Did you see anybody at that time?"

"I couldn't see anybody then."

Mrs. Gibson said. "There was more mumbled. Then I saw a flashlight and it flashed in a man's face. I thought it was a white woman with a colored man and I thought something had happened that hadn't ought to so I did not feel sorry for her."

Mrs. Gibson's direct examination by Simpson was terminated here and she was cross examined by Timothy N. Pfeiffer, of counsel for the defendants.

"How do you remember the date of this occurrence?" he asked.

"It was the same night my mother moved."

"What time did it happen?"

"About ten o'clock."

"Why did you go back to the scene if you knew a murder had been committed?"

"I didn't know a murder had been committed."

"Didn't you hear shots?"

"Yes, but I have often fired shots myself to scare people away. I have lived here fourteen years and I didn't shoot anybody yet."

This caused a ripple of mirth among the spectators and Judge Cleary had to rap for order.

"You have done a good deal of night riding before?" asked Pfeiffer.

"No, I sometimes rode after my hogs when they got loose but that was in the daytime. I think this was the first time I went out at night."

"What did you hear when the shots were fired?"

"I heard a woman say: 'Oh, Henry.'"

"Why did you run?"

"I ran because I heard shots. I didn't know who was there or what they might be doing."

Pfeiffer brought the admission from Mrs. Gibson that she had previously lived in Trenton under the name of Mrs. William Easton.

Simpson objected to Pfeiffer's questions and Pfeiffer explained that he was trying to prove Mrs. Gibson was incompetent as a witness.

George D. Totten, former county official, was questioned before Mrs. Gibson went on the stand. He was asked principally about the finding of the bodies and what transpired on that day.

Charlotte Mills, the twenty year old daughter of the slain woman, was questioned after Mrs. Gibson was excused.

"Did you know of the relationship between the rector and your mother?" she was asked.

"Dr. Hall came to our house frequently," she replied.

"Did you have any conversation about letters with your mother?"

"Yes, she told me she did not think she would live very long and asked me to get her letters from Dr. Hall, the letters were in his study, she said."

Do you know of a stove in the church where letters were exchanged between your mother and the minister?"

"No, but I know of a book in his study where mother left letters for him and he left letters for her."

The girl testified that Dr. and Mrs. Hall called at the hospital when her mother was ill. She

Progress of the East Bay Water Project Shown

The East Bay Municipal Utility District's Mokelumne river water project has progressed so far that in the event of a water shortage next spring the district would be able to pump water from the San Joaquin river, according to an announcement made yesterday by Dr. George C. Pardee district manager.

Dr. Pardee continued:

"Construction of the Mokelumne river project to the San Joaquin river is progressing satisfactorily. We will be able to pump from the river next spring if this should be necessary to obviate a water shortage and this means that the danger of a water famine which has long hung over them. Certain legal obstacles have prevented us from actually moving dirt on the Lancha Plana dam and the aqueduct line beyond the river, but we have reason to believe operations will begin there in the very near future. Work on the Claremont tunnel, a three-mile bore, was recently started. All contracts are moving according to schedule. The worst of the problems connected with the mountain water supply are solved. Acquisition of a distribution system is the next great matter to come before us."

Dr. Pardee said.

SAN FRANCISCO, August 13.—Statements in a morning newspaper today that Henry L. Dickman sought as a witness in the Hall-Mills murder mystery, had confessed that he was paid to desert the New Jersey State Troopers after he had secured important evidence in the case, was emphatically denied tonight by Col.
